Summary of the Course

Extending on ARTS3450, this course provides advanced tuition in Chinese language (Mandarin) study, using a textbook designed specifically for advanced Chinese learners at universities outside of China. It combines language studies with an exploration of Chinese culture and society, including traditional culture. The medium of instruction is Mandarin. You will extend your understanding and use of Chinese language, especially more specialised vocabulary and complex sentence structures. The emphasis is on the transformation of linguistic knowledge into active skills, including translation through oral and written activities, focusing on authentic Chinese texts by utilising various reading strategies. The texts cover a range of topics in Chinese language, culture and society. These carefully chosen texts will serve as a window through which you will see China at work, witness its achievements as well as the challenges and problems it faces.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Demonstrate fluency and confidence in the use of the Chinese language
2. Analyse and comment on sophisticated texts with an awareness of subtlety and nuance of meaning
3. Articulate a broad and coherent body of knowledge about ancient and contemporary Chinese culture and literature
4. Investigate and report on issues related to linguistic or socio-cultural aspects of the Chinese speaking world
5. Identify a wide range of language styles and registers, and write compositions with skill and confidence

Teaching Strategies

In designing this course, we take into account the increasing cultural and linguistic diversity, and the multiplicity of communication modes brought about by globalisation and technological advances. We believe that these factors have great impact on social behaviour and literate practices, and need to be addressed, if we want to come to grips with the ever-changing world, and make our teaching relevant and useful for our students. So in this course there is an emphasis on the transformation of students' linguistic knowledge to active communicative skills, and language study is complemented by cultural explorations. We also take into consideration that students enrolled in this course are from demographically and linguistically diverse backgrounds, and try to accommodate this in our teaching.

The course consists of a two-hour lecture and a three-hour tutorial each week. The lectures serve as introduction to the content of each chapter, as well as relevant cultural aspects, including basic knowledge of Classical Chinese language and grammar. The tutorials are devoted to the textbook, and a wide range of interactive activities. The four language skills – listening, speaking, reading and writing – are integrated, and multi-media approach adopted throughout the course to enrich students' learning experiences.

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

Copying: Using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This includes copying materials, ideas or concepts from a book, article, report or other written document, presentation, composition, artwork, design, drawing, circuitry, computer program or software, website, internet, other electronic resource, or another person's assignment without appropriate acknowledgement.

Inappropriate paraphrasing: Changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original information, structure and/or progression of ideas of the original without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another's ideas or words without credit and to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without appropriate referencing.

Collusion: Working with others but passing off the work as a person's individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student for the purpose of them plagiarising, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person's academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person's work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

Inappropriate citation: Citing sources which have not been read, without acknowledging the "secondary" source from which knowledge of them has been obtained.

Duplication ("self-plagiarism"): Submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

Correct referencing practices

The UNSW Academic Skills support offers resources and individual consultations. Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study. One of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW Library has the ELISE tool available to assist you with your study at UNSW. ELISE is designed to introduce new students to studying at UNSW but it can also be a great refresher during your study. Completing the ELISE tutorial and quiz will enable you to:

- analyse topics, plan responses and organise research for academic writing and other assessment tasks
- effectively and efficiently find appropriate information sources and evaluate relevance to your needs
- use and manage information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- better manage your time
- understand your rights and responsibilities as a student at UNSW
- be aware of plagiarism, copyright, UNSW Student Code of Conduct and Acceptable Use of UNSW ICT Resources Policy
- be aware of the standards of behaviour expected of everyone in the UNSW community
- locate services and information about UNSW and UNSW Library
