Summary of the Course

This introductory course challenges you to think about writing as experimental, world-building, adventurous, challenging, radical, and even dangerous, and to write as though it can change the way things are. It teaches that literature has been the engine-room of many of history’s most decisive changes to social, cultural, ideological, and behavioural norms. Divided into three primary modules – Utopian Speculation, The Urgency of Now, and Beyond Form and Formlessness – it exposes you to some of the most exciting and unconventional writing in English, and equips you with some of the skills necessary to resist the cultural conformities that deaden the mind. Treating literature as process, intervention, and experiment, the course asks you to see writing as a lifelong education in how - to use Samuel Beckett’s phrase - to fail better.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. think and write about literature in its social contexts
2. think and write about literature as an ongoing process
3. recognise and discuss the long tradition of experimentation in English literature
4. participate in the experimental project of literary production

Teaching Strategies

This course will be taught by 1 x 2 hr lecture and 1 x 2hr tutorial per week and will deploy LMS.

<td>MODULE 1 THE URGENCY OF NOW&lt;br&gt;LECTURE 1: LANGUAGE AND REALITY&lt;br&gt;Opening introductory lecture, addressing the broad aims of the course and its purpose. We will consider the privileged relationship between literature and realism, and question it. Why should writing be representational? What other kinds of literary language are available? Why might we want to use them? We then turn to a consideration of the manifesto as a form, and wonder why it has been such a powerful and instrumental form for the modern era.</td>

LECTURE 2: GERTRUDE STEIN AND MODERNIST EXPERIMENTATION

Continuing with our focus on experimental modes of writing, we take a look at the period known as 'modernism', which saw the emergence of many very strange and utterly unprecedented textual forms. We survey a few of these, and explain some of their motivations, before settling in for a closer look at Gertrude Stein's Tender Buttons, a classic of the genre.

NourbeSe Philips' Zong! – as an outstanding instance of what writing can do today.</td>

Resources

Prescribed Resources

The set texts for this course are:

Various artistic and political manifestos: on Moodle

Recommended Resources

There will be reference to several other texts collated on the Moodle site, and we strongly advise motivated students to read as many of them as possible.

Course Evaluation and Development

We've used your feedback to make some improvements.

We regularly alter the course to reflect student feedback and criticism.

This year we have reduced the amount of reading and writing required to complete the course.

We will be surveying student response to the course this term via myexperience.
Submission of Assessment Tasks

Turnitin Submission

If you encounter a problem when attempting to submit your assignment through Turnitin, please telephone External Support on 9385 3331 or email them on externaltsupport@unsw.edu.au. Support hours are 8:00am – 10:00pm on weekdays and 9:00am – 5:00pm on weekends (365 days a year). If you are unable to submit your assignment due to a fault with Turnitin you may apply for an extension, but you must retain your ticket number from External Support (along with any other relevant documents) to include as evidence to support your extension application. If you email External Support you will automatically receive a ticket number, but if you telephone you will need to specifically ask for one. Turnitin also provides updates on their system status on Twitter.

Generally, assessment tasks must be submitted electronically via either Turnitin or a Moodle assignment. In instances where this is not possible, it will be stated on your course’s Moodle site with alternative submission details.

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

Copying: using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This also applies to images, art and design projects, as well as presentations where someone presents another’s ideas or words without credit.

Inappropriate paraphrasing: Changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original structure and/or progression of ideas of the original, and information without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another’s ideas or words without credit and to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without appropriate referencing.

Collusion: working with others but passing off the work as a person’s individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student before the due date, or for the purpose of them plagiarising at any time, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person’s academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person’s work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

Inappropriate citation: Citing sources which have not been read, without acknowledging the "secondary" source from which knowledge of them has been obtained.

Duplication ("self-plagiarism"): submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

Correct referencing practices:

- Paraphrasing, summarising, essay writing and time management
- Appropriate use of and attribution for a range of materials including text, images, formulae and concepts.

Individual assistance is available on request from The Learning Centre (http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/). Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study and one of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW Library also has the ELISE tool available to assist you with your study at UNSW. ELISE is designed to introduce new students to studying at UNSW but it can also be a great refresher during your study.

Completing the ELISE tutorial and quiz will enable you to:

- analyse topics, plan responses and organise research for academic writing and other assessment tasks
- effectively and efficiently find appropriate information sources and evaluate relevance to your needs
- use and manage information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- better manage your time
• understand your rights and responsibilities as a student at UNSW
• be aware of plagiarism, copyright, UNSW Student Code of Conduct and Acceptable Use of UNSW ICT Resources Policy
• be aware of the standards of behaviour expected of everyone in the UNSW community
• locate services and information about UNSW and UNSW Library

Some of these areas will be familiar to you, others will be new. Gaining a solid understanding of all the related aspects of ELISE will help you make the most of your studies at UNSW.
