Summary of the Course

The 'Hollywood Film' course offers you the opportunity to study the world's most powerful film industry. It produces an historical and conceptual map of the institution that dominated the global film industry in the twentieth century, and which continues to do so today. In focusing on cinema as a socio-cultural and economic force, both in the United States and across the globe, it examines how Hollywood has historically produced and distributed a powerful cultural imaginary and devised methods to encourage audiences to consume it. The course considers Hollywood as an early example of a genuinely global industry that initially sustained itself through the implementation of a range of industrial, economic, cultural, legal, quasi-legal, and indeed illegal conventions and practices, i.e., the star system, the production code, the studio system, the genre system, monopolistic practices like vertical integration, and the Classical Hollywood style of filmmaking.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Identify key features of contemporary and classical Hollywood cinema and conventions of classical Hollywood narrative
2. Identify some of the technological, political, social and economic factors that have shaped the history of Hollywood cinema
3. Perform basic skills in analysing and paraphrasing scholarly texts in film studies.

Teaching Strategies

Film screenings provide the focus of the course and will take place each week after the lecture. Films have been selected in order to demonstrate how Hollywood cinema has developed throughout the course of the twentieth century, to introduce students to works that best exemplify developmental trends, that straddle a range of genres, and that allow students to observe and reflect upon changes in the Hollywood style.

Lectures are designed to provide a context for film screenings by giving an historical overview of the Hollywood system, outlining the different subsystems that support the Hollywood system, and paying particular attention to the impact of key economic, juridical, social, historical and technological factors that have determined the nature of the industry. They also provide explanations of relevant concepts and draw studentsâ?? attention to particularities of film style.

Tutorials will be focused on student-led discussion. Each week from week 4, a group of 2-3 students will be responsible for leading the discussion on key points in the readings and the screening. This task may be approached creatively and involve design of group activities that prompt the class to delve deeply into issues and ideas raised by the readings and their relation to the weekly screenings. This task allows students to practice planning, teamwork and public speaking skills. Tutorials are thus designed to ensure that students develop the capacity to think independently about the course material and come to class adequately prepared to discuss it.

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

Copying: using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This also applies to images, art and design projects, as well as presentations where someone presents another’s ideas or words without credit.

Inappropriate paraphrasing: Changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original structure and/or progression of ideas of the original, and information without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another’s ideas or words without credit and to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without appropriate referencing.

Collusion: working with others but passing off the work as a person’s individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student before the due date, or for the purpose of them plagiarising at any time, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person’s academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person’s work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

Inappropriate citation: Citing sources which have not been read, without acknowledging the "secondary" source from which knowledge of them has been obtained.

Duplication ("self-plagiarism"): submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

Correct referencing practices:

- Paraphrasing, summarising, essay writing and time management
- Appropriate use of and attribution for a range of materials including text, images, formulae and concepts.

Individual assistance is available on request from The Learning Centre (http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/). Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study and one of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW Library also has the ELISE tool available to assist you with your study at UNSW. ELISE is designed to introduce new students to studying at UNSW but it can also be a great refresher during your study.

Completing the ELISE tutorial and quiz will enable you to:

- analyse topics, plan responses and organise research for academic writing and other assessment tasks
- effectively and efficiently find appropriate information sources and evaluate relevance to your needs
- use and manage information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- better manage your time
• understand your rights and responsibilities as a student at UNSW
• be aware of plagiarism, copyright, UNSW Student Code of Conduct and Acceptable Use of UNSW ICT Resources Policy
• be aware of the standards of behaviour expected of everyone in the UNSW community
• locate services and information about UNSW and UNSW Library

Some of these areas will be familiar to you, others will be new. Gaining a solid understanding of all the related aspects of ELISE will help you make the most of your studies at UNSW.
