Summary of the Course

The course explores the history of Rome's first dynasty and how it managed the transition from republic to monarchy. The Roman Emperors considers how the new order was created and how it developed its legitimacy. You will examine the lives of Augustus, Tiberius, Caligula, Claudius and Nero, and such extraordinary imperial women as Livia, Julia and Agrippina the Elder. As well as engaging with the work of leading historians, you will read the salacious and gossip-filled Lives of Suetonius in order to assess the merits of biography as an historical source, and analyse modern media representations of the dynasty, including Robert Graves' I Claudius.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Analyse Rome's transition from republic to empire and evaluate the historiographical responses to it
2. Demonstrate ability to conduct independent research in order to answer historical questions.
3. Analyse and critically assess primary and secondary sources (online and in print).

Teaching Strategies

The course will develop your understanding of Rome's transition from republic to monarchy, with special reference to the reigns of the first five 'emperors'. The course is delivered primarily through lectures and tutorials. Lectures will provide the necessary historical and historiographical background to each phase in this critical period in Roman history, although you will be encouraged to ask questions during the lecture. At least 20 minutes will be set aside for group discussion on key concepts raised in the lecture.

Tutorials will focus on more specific historical, theoretical and historiographical issues, and will centre on specific primary documents. You will be required to give one ten-minute presentation to the class, and supply each student with a 3 (A4) page document that includes a description of the problem you are addressing, your assessment of the problem, and an annotated bibliography. The major piece of assessment is a major essay, which will give you an opportunity to undertake independent research, and to engage critically with readings.

The research essay will require students to undertake independent research on a specific topic, to engage with scholarship in the field and to practice their critical thinking, analytical and writing skills. Engagement with the lecture and reading material will be assessed by a final exam, which will give you opportunity to think broadly about the period and its meaning.
Assessment

This course provides a unique opportunity to immerse oneself into the world of the Caesars. Students are encouraged to delve into the lives of individual emperors and imperial women, and to relate their intimate stories to the changing nature of the Roman power structure. To help us attain a sense of what life was like in the imperial Roman family, we will watch and analyze selections of television and film dramas about the Julio-Claudians, particularly the BBC television adaptation of Robert Graves' 'I Claudius'. At least one of the questions in the class test will be on 'I Claudius'.

Assessment Details

Assessment 1: Research essay

Length: 3000-3500 words maximum.

Details:

3500 word essay. The case studies presented in class will serve as a guide for choosing an issue to address in the essay. Written feedback will be provided. This is the final assessment for attendance purposes.

Additional details:

The essay must be based on extensive research that includes the use of primary sources and secondary sources. A minimum of 12 monographs (specialized works on a given theme or topic) must be used. Textbooks and other basic materials will be useful but they are not to be included in the count.

Turnitin setting: This assignment is submitted through Turnitin and students do not see Turnitin similarity reports.

Assessment 2: Test

Length: 1000 words

Details:

50-minute in-class test that assesses general understandings of the nature of the political revolution covered in the course.
Additional details:

The test runs for an hour and it is based on the issues covered in the lectures. A writing booklet will be provided, but you must bring at least one pen. You will be asked to answer four questions on broad issues. Your test paper does not require footnotes or quotes.

Assessment 3: Presentation

Details:

Each student will complete one in-class presentation over the course of the term. The presentation will be strictly no longer than 10 minutes in length. The presentation will be assessed on the quality of its content, and the amount of research that went into its preparation. Each student will supply a guide to the presentation, between 750-1000 words, for each fellow student. It will stipulate the main points and include a bibliography.

Written feedback and mark will be provided.

Additional details:

This assessment comes in two parts. The first is the presentation. Each student is required to give an oral presentation. You will be asked to nominate your three favourite topics and you will be then b allocated one of them. Your presentation will then reflect one of the questions on the topic provided by the convenor in the tutorial guide. You will speak for 5 minutes before the class and answer any questions from your audience. You will only be marked on substance: that means you do not need to worry about your speaking voice, delivery or the quality of your PPT (if you choose to use one). This assignment is worth 20 out of 30. The second part is a handout that requires you to appraise a primary document (e.g. a passage from Tacitus or Suetonius, an epigraph) that relates to your presentation topic. This is worth 10 out of 30. More detail about this assignment will be discussed in the first class.

Turnitin setting: This is not a Turnitin assignment

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

Copying: using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This also applies to images, art and design projects, as well as presentations where someone presents another’s ideas or words without credit.

Inappropriate paraphrasing: Changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original structure and/or progression of ideas of the original, and information without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another’s ideas or words without credit and to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without appropriate referencing.

Collusion: working with others but passing off the work as a person’s individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student before the due date, or for the purpose of them plagiarising at any time, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person’s academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person’s work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

Inappropriate citation: Citing sources which have not been read, without acknowledging the "secondary" source from which knowledge of them has been obtained.

Duplication ("self-plagiarism"): submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

Correct referencing practices:

- Paraphrasing, summarising, essay writing and time management
- Appropriate use of and attribution for a range of materials including text, images, formulae and concepts.

Individual assistance is available on request from The Learning Centre (http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/). Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study and one of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW Library also has the ELISE tool available to assist you with your study at UNSW. ELISE is designed to introduce new students to studying at UNSW but it can also be a great refresher during your study.

Completing the ELISE tutorial and quiz will enable you to:

- analyse topics, plan responses and organise research for academic writing and other assessment tasks
- effectively and efficiently find appropriate information sources and evaluate relevance to your needs
- use and manage information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- better manage your time
• understand your rights and responsibilities as a student at UNSW
• be aware of plagiarism, copyright, UNSW Student Code of Conduct and Acceptable Use of UNSW ICT Resources Policy
• be aware of the standards of behaviour expected of everyone in the UNSW community
• locate services and information about UNSW and UNSW Library

Some of these areas will be familiar to you, others will be new. Gaining a solid understanding of all the related aspects of ELISE will help you make the most of your studies at UNSW.
