Summary of the Course

Most scholars, policy-makers and governance practitioners argue that ‘globalisation’ exists and is important, but not all offer a clear understanding of what globalisation means for contemporary world politics. This course will enable you to understand and analyse the types, structures and methods of governance at the global level through exploration of the nature, impacts and future of globalised life. Themes of global governance (including international security, globalised economic relations, regionalism, human rights, the development regime, and humanitarian intervention) are addressed in relation to what it means to question the nature and function of power, authority and global cooperation in international relations. In particular, you will explore certain political and ‘policy’ debates behind issues such as international aid, foreign debt, structural adjustment, environmental degradation, as well as the role and effects of NGOs, international organisations and the wider international community. The course will particularly focus on introducing you to critical approaches to globalisation and global governance, and you will be asked to examine a variety of issues, questions and concerns raised by the study of governance and the implications of these issues for global politics.

Subject Area: Politics and International Relations.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Outline and evaluate competing perspectives on globalisation and global governance, describing key debates in studies of contemporary global governance.
2. Explain and describe how globalisation affects different ‘regimes’ in global politics.
3. Discuss the complexities of policy making at the global level and explain the role of key actors in global governance.
4. Recognise the obstacles to effective co-operation by states, intergovernmental organisations, private actors and global civil society, and the potential to overcome these obstacles.

Teaching Strategies

The course is taught through a weekly two-hour lecture and one-hour tutorial, with some online-facilitated activity. Case study assessments are designed to allow you flexibility and choice, while the examination asks you to demonstrate engagement across course content and in explicit relation to your achievement of the weekly learning outcomes. The course has been designed to engage you in the contemporary practices of global governance in ways that allow you to hone your particular ‘regime’ interests, while demonstrating a breadth of independent learning across subject areas. The course encourages critical thinking through informed class preparation and discussion based on guided reading and independent research. Feedback is provided on all assessments in a meaningful and timely manner. Your achievement of the learning outcomes of this course is clearly demonstrated through your engagement with course material, the quality of the presentation of your ideas and discussion and your level of achievement in course assessment. Lectures are participatory in style, tutorial discussions will be both student- and tutor-led and online activities will require independent and collaborative preparation.

Assessment Details

Assessment 1: Case Study Papers

Start date: Not Applicable

Length: 1200 words each

Details: Students submit two individual cases study papers, based on two separate governance examples (2 x 1200 words). Each case study paper is worth 25% of the overall grade, for a total of 50%. Students must use their papers to reflect on existing research, current debates and policy dilemmas across the governance examples in question in each case. Students will receive written feedback, a completed rubric and a numerical grade through Moodle within two weeks of submission.

Additional details:

See Moodle for details.

Submission notes: See Moodle for details

Turnitin setting: This assignment is submitted through Turnitin and students do not see Turnitin similarity reports.

Assessment 2: Examination

Start date: Not Applicable

Details: Students are required to sit a 2-hour final exam during the University's examination period. The examination will evaluate a student's ability to think synthetically and critically about the material in the course. It requires students to engage with content across the course while asking them to demonstrate their achievement of the weekly learning outcomes. Examination scripts will be marked but not returned to students. Students receive a numerical grade and can request from the School of Social Sciences to see their examination paper. This is the final assessment for this course.

Turnitin setting: This is not a Turnitin assignment
Attendance Requirements

Students are strongly encouraged to attend all classes and review lecture recordings.

Course Evaluation and Development

Student evaluative feedback is gathered periodically. Informal feedback and feedback specific to a particularly seminar topic will be welcomed and encouraged during the semester. Student feedback is taken seriously and continual enhancements are made to learning and teaching activities on the basis of student feedback. For example, and as a direct result of student feedback, the submission times of assessments takes into consideration the needs of students who have full time employment.
Submission of Assessment Tasks

Turnitin Submission

If you encounter a problem when attempting to submit your assignment through Turnitin, please telephone External Support on 9385 3331 or email them on externalteltsupport@unsw.edu.au. Support hours are 8:00am – 10:00pm on weekdays and 9:00am – 5:00pm on weekends (365 days a year). If you are unable to submit your assignment due to a fault with Turnitin you may apply for an extension, but you must retain your ticket number from External Support (along with any other relevant documents) to include as evidence to support your extension application. If you email External Support you will automatically receive a ticket number, but if you telephone you will need to specifically ask for one. Turnitin also provides updates on their system status on Twitter.

Generally, assessment tasks must be submitted electronically via either Turnitin or a Moodle assignment. In instances where this is not possible, it will be stated on your course’s Moodle site with alternative submission details.

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is using the words or ideas of others and presenting them as your own. It can take many forms, from deliberate cheating to accidentally copying from a source without acknowledgement.

UNSW groups plagiarism into the following categories:

Copying: using the same or very similar words to the original text or idea without acknowledging the source or using quotation marks. This also applies to images, art and design projects, as well as presentations where someone presents another’s ideas or words without credit.

Inappropriate paraphrasing: Changing a few words and phrases while mostly retaining the original structure and/or progression of ideas of the original, and information without acknowledgement. This also applies in presentations where someone paraphrases another’s ideas or words without credit and to piecing together quotes and paraphrases into a new whole, without appropriate referencing.

Collusion: working with others but passing off the work as a person’s individual work. Collusion also includes providing your work to another student before the due date, or for the purpose of them plagiarising at any time, paying another person to perform an academic task, stealing or acquiring another person’s academic work and copying it, offering to complete another person’s work or seeking payment for completing academic work.

Inappropriate citation: Citing sources which have not been read, without acknowledging the "secondary" source from which knowledge of them has been obtained.

Duplication ("self-plagiarism"): submitting your own work, in whole or in part, where it has previously been prepared or submitted for another assessment or course at UNSW or another university.

Correct referencing practices:

- Paraphrasing, summarising, essay writing and time management
- Appropriate use of and attribution for a range of materials including text, images, formulae and concepts.

Individual assistance is available on request from The Learning Centre (http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/). Students are also reminded that careful time management is an important part of study and one of the identified causes of plagiarism is poor time management. Students should allow sufficient time for research, drafting and proper referencing of sources in preparing all assessment items.

UNSW Library also has the ELISE tool available to assist you with your study at UNSW. ELISE is designed to introduce new students to studying at UNSW but it can also be a great refresher during your study.

Completing the ELISE tutorial and quiz will enable you to:

- analyse topics, plan responses and organise research for academic writing and other assessment tasks
- effectively and efficiently find appropriate information sources and evaluate relevance to your needs
- use and manage information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- better manage your time
• understand your rights and responsibilities as a student at UNSW
• be aware of plagiarism, copyright, UNSW Student Code of Conduct and Acceptable Use of
  UNSW ICT Resources Policy
• be aware of the standards of behaviour expected of everyone in the UNSW community
• locate services and information about UNSW and UNSW Library

Some of these areas will be familiar to you, others will be new. Gaining a solid understanding of all the related aspects of ELISE will help you make the most of your studies at UNSW.
